Nadine Sangston Named District Teacher of the Year for 2013-14

This year's University Place School District Teacher of the Year Award was presented to Curtis High School math teacher and department chair Nadine Sangston, according to Eric Brubaker, her principal. "Mrs. Sangston is extremely deserving of this honor," said Brubaker. "She pushes each one of her students to excel while providing a level of individual support that builds relationship with each student. She is a master at using formative assessment to adapt her lesson plans to meet student needs. Her work as a building and district leader in math has benefited the district for the last seven or eight years. It is no coincidence that the high school's math scores increased during that same time."

A teacher for 28 years, Sangston earned her bachelor's degree in mathematics education from Western Washington University, and her masters from the University of Washington. She also received certification in computer science through Pacific Lutheran University. UPSD's stellar reputation brought her here from the Franklin Pierce district six years ago. "Since I've come to UP, I have been pushed professionally—not just teaching kids, but sharing knowledge with other professionals," said Sangston, who credits the teaching environment with drastically improving her growth. "Working in teacher trainings like the Math: Getting It Project, the spring institute, and the summer institute is where you really become more aware of what you're doing in the classroom, getting edified and praised for the positives. It's a terrific place to teach."

Curtis Graduation 2014

"As long as you work hard, as long as you take pride in what you do, and as long as you are guided by the morals and ethics that you have learned from your parents and from your teachers, you will succeed. You will make a difference in the world. And you will make us all proud."

Eric Brubaker
Principal

"In my class, I have a saying. When I cover material that I know is going to be on the exam, I say... UNDERLINE, HIGHLIGHT, STAR. Your life is going to be full of underline, highlight, star moments. Don't let life's distractions keep you from recognizing them."

Stuart Dodge
History Teacher

"Everything we learned from our parents, our teachers, our coaches, each other, and from this community has built the foundation of who we are today. I hope I choose what is right over what is popular, but I know I'll make many wrong choices that will end in failure, but that's where we learn the most."

Jason Mukai
Senior Class President
